FOR IMMEADIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: Antieris Johnson
artadopts@gmail.com

Harwood Park Reopening Celebration and Mural Dedication

Who: A collaboration between Art Adopts a Child, The Baltimore Office of Promotion & The Arts, The Baltimore City Dept. of Recreation and Parks, the Harwood Community Association, as well as the Baltimore Mural Program and Baltimore Housing & Community Development

What: Harwood Park has been renovated and will be reopening to the local community. The unveiling of a new public Mural, entitled "Missing Pieces can be Found," will be officially introduced to city officials, communities leaders and many more.

Where: Harwood Park – 416 E. 27th Street, Baltimore, MD 21218

When: Saturday, October 5th 2013 – 1pm

BALTIMORE, MD (September, 9th 2013) – On October 5th, 2013, Harwood Park will commemorate it's reopening through the unveiling of a new Mural.

We invite you to see what happens when strong community action, inspired youth, as well as civic and non-profit leadership come together to form a coalition willing to change our communities for the better.

Ellisa Yates, Mural Artist and 7th grader at Mother Seton Academy, will talk about her inspiration for the mural, entitled "Missing Pieces Can Be Found." Students from Margaret Brent will also talk about their community action project to rebuild Harwood Park.

"The mural's dedication celebrates its relationship to the community, as well as the young artists. The ceremony is also a great way to thank everyone involved," said Antieris Johnson, Mural Project Director for Art Adopts a Child. Ms. Johnson will serve as Master of Ceremonies for the unveiling of this event.

Special Guest Speakers include: Mayor Stephanie Rawlings-Blake, and Baltimore City Councilman Carl Stokes.

###